

Title of Article: Paper presented: Youth Education and Tomorrow.

Author(s): Imhonopi, D

Outlet: Public Lecture Organised by the Association of Industrial and Labour Relations Students, Olabisi Onabanjo University, Ogun State.

Date: 2007

Abstract: Youth education is critical to the development of any country. Africa is especially blessed with a huge youth population which can be harnessed for the development of the region. However, lack of investment in youth education may explain the reasons for the high rate of criminal activities and insecurity in the country, which in most cases, are caused by unemployed and uneducated youths. In this paper, the author has argued that government and other stakeholders must be committed to investment in youth education to preserve the future of the country and to drive the development process. The paper concludes that when the youths of Nigeria are educated, they become bridge builders to the desired tomorrow for the country.